2012 Equine Fall Festival at Grand Prix Equestrian

Maple Park—Sept. 30—On Saturday, October 27, 2012, Grand Prix Equestrian in Maple Park, IL will hosts its annual FALL AT THE FARM festival for the entire family, free of charge. The day will include numerous activities for kids and adults to enjoy, including a pumpkin painting contest, a horseshoe competition for adults, expert lectures on pastures and hay quality after a very dry summer, a horse personality analysis by KYB Professional Trainer and horse personality expert, Yvonne Barteau, equestrian exhibitions and more.

Prizes such as free riding lessons will be given for the competitions that day.

For the past three years, GPE has hosted the festival to bring the broader community together in a fun and fanciful way. Everyone loves horses, whether they own or ride one or just from a distance. This day gives guests the opportunity to have a hands-on experience with the horses of GPE and to learn more about their care and training.

Grand Prix Equestrian opened its doors in 2009. With 62 stalls, lush pastures, six paddocks and lots of staff on hand to care for our equine friends, it is the safe and ideal place for horses and riders to experience the quality and expertise of a truly professional facility and come together with like-minded members who are looking to achieve success in their equestrian goals.

In its third year, the Fall Festival has attracted hundreds of our neighbors in years past that have enjoyed all we've offered and asked for more. This year, we're increasing our activities and adding great prizes for kids and adults.

The festivities begin at 11 AM and run until 5PM. To learn more about the day, go to www.grandprixequestrian.com or call our farm manager, Jessica Lawton at (224) 522-8743.
